Business Memo

To: Professor White

From: Surbhi and Umais Javed

Date: October 7, 2025

Subject: Revised Problem Hypothesis & Product Learnings from Customer Interviews

Most Important Takeaway

Small business owners reject generic fulfillment, seeking specialized partners who build trust by understanding their unique product, operations, or brand.

Product-Market Fit

Our product fits two underserved segments:

- Micro-Sellers: Home-based sellers constrained by time and space. Our Tier 1 (P2P) offers an affordable, personal solution.
- Sophisticated Niche Sellers: Businesses with complex needs (e.g., compliance, luxury branding). Our specialized Tiers 2 & 3 provide a strong fit where generic 3PLs fail.

Problem Statement

- Original: E-commerce is booming, but fulfillment is breaking under the weight of speed, cost, and complexity.
- Revised: Generic fulfillment solutions are failing to meet the specific needs of small and medium sellers, creating a crisis of trust and costing them valuable time for growth.
- Rationale: Our revision narrows the focus from a broad industry issue to the specific customer pain point discovered in interviews: a lack of specialized partners, leading to a crisis of trust.

Revisions to Product/Service

We will refine our three-tier model with features focused on specialization and trust:

- Specialization Tags: Tagging fulfillers (e.g., "Luxury Goods," "Food-Grade") to improve AI matching.
- Flexible Revenue: A pay-per-order model for Tier 1, with SaaS fees for advanced features in Tiers 2 & 3.
- Trust Verification: Building tangible proof into onboarding (e.g., virtual tours, certifications, training).

The “Must Haves” for our revised solution are:

- Specialized Matching: AI must match based on product and operational needs.
- Custom Branding: Ability to handle meticulous, high-touch unboxing experiences.

- High-Visibility Dashboard: Real-time data to give sellers a sense of control.

6 Overall Lessons Learned from Interviews

1. The core problem is a lack of trust and alignment, not just logistics.
2. Customer segmentation is critical; a perfect solution for a niche is better than a generic one for all.
3. Trust requires tangible proof (inspections, trials), not just promises.
4. Our value proposition is the opportunity cost we save sellers, giving them time back for growth.
5. Pricing must be tied to solving high-value problems, justifying fees.
6. Understanding market rejection is crucial for precisely defining our target customer.

Interview Analysis Spreadsheet